III. SEARCH PROCEDURE FOR DIGITAL DEVICES

6. In searching digital devices or forensic copies thereof, law enforcement personnel executing this search warrant will employ the following procedure:

a. Law enforcement personnel or other individuals assisting law enforcement personnel (the "search team") will, in their discretion, either search the digital device(s) on-site or seize and transport the device(s) to an appropriate law enforcement laboratory or similar facility to be searched at that location. The search team shall complete the search as soon as is practicable but not to exceed 60 days from the date of execution of the warrant. If additional time is needed, the government may seek an extension of this time period from the Court on or before the date by which the search was to have been completed.

b. The search team will conduct the search only by using search protocols specifically chosen to identify only the specific items to be seized under this warrant.

i. The search team may subject all of the data contained in each digital device capable of containing any of the items to be seized to the search protocols to determine whether the device and any data thereon falls within the list of items to be seized. The search team may also search for and attempt to recover deleted, "hidden," or encrypted data to determine, pursuant to the search protocols, whether the data falls within the list of items to be seized.

ii. The search team may use tools to exclude normal operating system files and standard third-party software that do not need to be searched.

c. When searching a digital device pursuant to the specific search protocols selected, the search team shall make and retain notes regarding how the search was conducted pursuant to the selected protocols.

d. If the search team, while searching a digital device, encounters immediately apparent contraband or other evidence of a crime outside the scope of the items to be seized, the team shall immediately discontinue its search of that device pending further order of the Court and shall make and retain notes detailing how the contraband or other evidence of a crime was encountered, including how it was immediately apparent contraband or evidence of a crime.

e. If the search determines that a digital device does not contain any data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government will, as soon as is practicable, return the device and delete or destroy all forensic copies thereof.

f. If the search determines that a digital device does contain data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government may make and retain copies of such data, and may access such data at any time.

g. If the search determines that a digital device is (1) itself an item to be seized and/or (2) contains data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government may retain forensic copies of the digital device but may not access them (after the time for searching the device has expired) absent further court order.

h. The government may retain a digital device itself until further order of the Court or one year after the conclusion of the criminal investigation or case (whichever is latest), only if the device is determined to be an instrumentality of an offense under investigation or the government, within 14 days following the time period authorized by the Court for completing the search, obtains an order from the Court authorizing retention of the device (or while an application for such an order is pending). Otherwise, the government must return the device.

i. Notwithstanding the above, after the completion of the search of the digital devices, the government shall not access digital data falling outside the scope of the items to be seized absent further order of the Court.

7. In order to search for data capable of being read or interpreted by a digital device, law enforcement personnel are authorized to seize the following items:

b. Any equipment used to facilitate the transmission, creation, display, encoding, or storage of digital data;

c. Any magnetic, electronic, or optical storage device capable of storing digital data;

g. Any passwords, password files, test keys, encryption codes, or other information necessary to access the digital device or data stored on the digital device.

8. The special procedures relating to digital devices found in this warrant govern only the search of digital devices pursuant to the authority conferred by this warrant and do not apply to any search of digital devices pursuant to any other court order.

Even though many of the entity descriptions include "Inc." or "LLC," it is common for entities to be referred to in documents and communications without inclusion of the "Inc." or "LLC." Therefore, in seizing items pursuant to the search warrants, the agents should treat as equivalents references to entities with or without the "Inc" or "LLC." For example, a document that mentions "Top Surgeons" should be treated the same for purposes of the items to be seized as a document that mentions "Top Surgeons, Inc." or "Top Surgeons, LLC."

4. As used herein, the terms "documents," "records" and "evidence" include communications of any type, description or form.

5. As used herein, the terms "documents," "records," "programs," "applications," "materials," and other references to records of any specified type (e.g., "statements," "ledgers," "copies") includes documents, records, programs, applications, and materials created, modified, or stored in any form, including in digital form on any digital device and any forensic copies thereof.

6. As used herein, the term "digital device" includes any electronic system or device capable of storing or processing data in digital form, including central processing units; desktop, laptop, notebook, and tablet computers; personal digital assistants; wireless communication devices, such as telephone paging devices, beepers, mobile telephones, and smart phones; digital cameras; peripheral input/output devices, such as keyboards, printers, scanners, plotters, monitors, and drives intended for removable media; related communications devices, such as modems, routers, cables, and connections; storage media, such as hard disk drives, floppy disks, memory cards, optical disks, and magnetic tapes used to store digital data (excluding analog tapes such as VHS); and security devices.

III. SEARCH PROCEDURE FOR DIGITAL DEVICES

6. In searching digital devices or forensic copies thereof, law enforcement personnel executing this search warrant will employ the following procedure:

a. Law enforcement personnel or other individuals assisting law enforcement personnel (the "search team") will, in their discretion, either search the digital device(s) on-site or seize and transport the device(s) to an appropriate law enforcement laboratory or similar facility to be searched at that location. The search team shall complete the search as soon as is practicable but not to exceed 60 days from the date of execution of the warrant. If additional time is needed, the government may seek an extension of this time period from the Court on or before the date by which the search was to have been completed.

b. The search team will conduct the search only by using search protocols specifically chosen to identify only the specific items to be seized under this warrant.

i. The search team may subject all of the data contained in each digital device capable of containing any of the items to be seized to the search protocols to determine whether the device and any data thereon falls within the list of items to be seized. The search team may also search for and attempt to recover deleted, "hidden," or encrypted data to determine, pursuant to the search protocols, whether the data falls within the list of items to be seized.

ii. The search team may use tools to exclude normal operating system files and standard third-party software that do not need to be searched.

c. When searching a digital device pursuant to the specific search protocols selected, the search team shall make and retain notes regarding how the search was conducted pursuant to the selected protocols.

d. If the search team, while searching a digital device, encounters immediately apparent contraband or other evidence of a crime outside the scope of the items to be seized, the team shall immediately discontinue its search of that device pending further order of the Court and shall make and retain notes detailing how the contraband or other evidence of a crime was encountered, including how it was immediately apparent contraband or evidence of a crime.

e. If the search determines that a digital device does not contain any data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government will, as soon as is practicable, return the device and delete or destroy all forensic copies thereof.

f. If the search determines that a digital device does contain data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government may make and retain copies of such data, and may access such data at any time.

g. If the search determines that a digital device is (1) itself an item to be seized and/or (2) contains data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government may retain forensic copies of the digital device but may not access them (after the time for searching the device has expired) absent further court order.

h. The government may retain a digital device itself until further order of the Court or one year after the conclusion of the criminal investigation or case (whichever is latest), only if the device is determined to be an instrumentality of an offense under investigation or the government, within 14 days following the time period authorized by the Court for completing the search, obtains an order from the Court authorizing retention of the device (or while an application for such an order is pending). Otherwise, the government must return the device.

i. Notwithstanding the above, after the completion of the search of the digital devices, the government shall not access digital data falling outside the scope of the items to be seized absent further order of the Court.

g. Any passwords, password files, test keys, encryption codes, or other information necessary to access the digital device or data stored on the digital device.

8. The special procedures relating to digital devices found in this warrant govern only the search of digital devices pursuant to the authority conferred by this warrant and do not apply to any search of digital devices pursuant to any other court order.

Even though many of the entity descriptions include "Inc." or "LLC," it is common for entities to be referred to in documents and communications without inclusion of the "Inc." or "LLC." Therefore, in seizing items pursuant to the search warrants, the agents should treat as equivalents references to entities with or without the "Inc" or "LLC." For example, a document that mentions "Top Surgeons" should be treated the same for purposes of the items to be seized as a document that mentions "Top Surgeons, Inc." or "Top Surgeons, LLC."

- browsing history, user profiles, e-mail, e-mail contacts, chat and instant messaging logs, photographs, and correspondence;
- ii. evidence of the presence or absence of software that would allow others to control the device, such as viruses, Trojan horses, and other forms of malicious software, as well as evidence of the presence or absence of security software designed to detect malicious software;
 - iii. evidence of the attachment of other devices;
 - iv. evidence of counter-forensic programs (and associated data) that are designed to eliminate data from the device;
 - v. evidence of the times the device was used;
 - vi. passwords, encryption keys, and other access devices that may be necessary to access the device;

II. DEFINITIONS

2. The specified time period is deemed to include documents dated prior to the time period to the extent they pertain or relate to events, conditions, knowledge, or matters within the specified time period.

3. As used herein, the term "Lap-Band patient" includes any patient who inquired about or underwent Lap-Band surgery, attended a seminar on Lap-Band surgery, underwent a bariatric physical exam, an EGD, and/or a sleep study, was described as a "bariatric" or "Lap-Band" patient, or was recorded as having a diagnosis of morbid obesity (ICD 9 Code 278.01).

4. As used herein, the terms "documents," "records" and "evidence" include communications of any type, description or form.

5. As used herein, the terms "documents," "records," "programs," "applications," "materials," and other references to records of any specified type (e.g., "statements," "ledgers," "copies") includes documents, records, programs, applications, and materials created, modified, or stored in any form, including in digital form on any digital device and any forensic copies thereof.

6. As used herein, the term "digital device" includes any electronic system or device capable of storing or processing data in digital form, including central processing units;

desktop, laptop, notebook, and tablet computers; personal digital assistants; wireless communication devices, such as telephone paging devices, beepers, mobile telephones, and smart phones; digital cameras; peripheral input/output devices, such as keyboards, printers, scanners, plotters, monitors, and drives intended for removable media; related communications devices, such as modems, routers, cables, and connections; storage media, such as hard disk drives, floppy disks, memory cards, optical disks, and magnetic tapes used to store digital data (excluding analog tapes such as VHS); and security devices.

III. SEARCH PROCEDURE FOR DIGITAL DEVICES

6. In searching digital devices or forensic copies thereof, law enforcement personnel executing this search warrant will employ the following procedure:

a. Law enforcement personnel or other individuals assisting law enforcement personnel (the "search team") will, in their discretion, either search the digital device(s) on-site or seize and transport the device(s) to an appropriate law enforcement laboratory or similar facility to be searched at that location. The search team shall complete the search as soon as is practicable but not to exceed 60 days from the date of execution of the warrant. If additional time is needed, the government may seek an extension of this time period from the Court on or before the date by which the search was to have been completed.

b. The search team will conduct the search only by using search protocols specifically chosen to identify only the specific items to be seized under this warrant.

i. The search team may subject all of the data contained in each digital device capable of containing any of the items to be seized to the search protocols to determine whether the device and any data thereon falls within the list of items to be seized. The search team may also search for and attempt to recover deleted, "hidden," or encrypted data to determine, pursuant to the search protocols, whether the data falls within the list of items to be seized.

ii. The search team may use tools to exclude normal operating system files and standard third-party software that do not need to be searched.

c. When searching a digital device pursuant to the specific search protocols selected, the search team shall make and retain notes regarding how the search was conducted pursuant to the selected protocols.

d. If the search team, while searching a digital device, encounters immediately apparent contraband or other evidence of a crime outside the scope of the items to be seized, the team shall immediately discontinue its search of that device

pending further order of the Court and shall make and retain notes detailing how the contraband or other evidence of a crime was encountered, including how it was immediately apparent contraband or evidence of a crime.

e. If the search determines that a digital device does not contain any data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government will, as soon as is practicable, return the device and delete or destroy all forensic copies thereof.

f. If the search determines that a digital device does contain data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government may make and retain copies of such data, and may access such data at any time.

g. If the search determines that a digital device is (1) itself an item to be seized and/or (2) contains data falling within the list of items to be seized, the government may retain forensic copies of the digital device but may not access them (after the time for searching the device has expired) absent further court order.

h. The government may retain a digital device itself until further order of the Court or one year after the conclusion of the criminal investigation or case (whichever is latest), only if the device is determined to be an instrumentality of an offense under investigation or the government, within 14 days following the time period authorized by the Court for completing the search, obtains an order from the Court authorizing retention of the device (or while an application for such an order is pending). Otherwise, the government must return the device.

i. Notwithstanding the above, after the completion of the search of the digital devices, the government shall not access digital data falling outside the scope of the items to be seized absent further order of the Court.

7. In order to search for data capable of being read or interpreted by a digital device, law enforcement personnel are authorized to seize the following items:

a. Any digital device capable of being used to commit, further or store evidence of the offense(s) listed above;

b. Any equipment used to facilitate the transmission, creation, display, encoding, or storage of digital data;

c. Any magnetic, electronic, or optical storage device capable of storing digital data;

d. Any documentation, operating logs, or reference manuals regarding the operation of the digital device or software used in the digital device;

e. Any applications, utility programs, compilers, interpreters, or other software used to facilitate direct or indirect communication with the digital device;

f. Any physical keys, encryption devices, dongles, or similar physical items that are necessary to gain access to the digital device or data stored on the digital device; and

g. Any passwords, password files, test keys, encryption codes, or other information necessary to access the digital device or data stored on the digital device.

8. The special procedures relating to digital devices found in this warrant govern only the search of digital devices pursuant to the authority conferred by this warrant and do not apply to any search of digital devices pursuant to any other court order.

Even though many of the entity descriptions include "Inc." or "LLC," it is common for entities to be referred to in documents and communications without inclusion of the "Inc." or "LLC." Therefore, in seizing items pursuant to the search warrants, the agents should treat as equivalents references to entities with or without the "Inc." or "LLC." For example, a document that mentions "Top Surgeons" should be treated the same for purposes of the items to be seized as a document that mentions "Top Surgeons, Inc." or "Top Surgeons, LLC."

Re: United States v. Cindy Omid,
CR No. 13-00739-SVW

Dear Mr. Umhofer:

This letter responds to your June 11, 2014 letter requesting discovery and your follow-up letter sent on June 17, 2014.

Discovery produced

On June 16, 2014, the government provided you discovery in this matter. The government believes that the discovery provided satisfies its discovery obligations. Once the Court signs the ex parte applications allowing the government to produce records that may implicate Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 6(e) and for limited unsealing of certain pleadings, the government will also provide you (1) financial records of various individuals and entities covering the period alleged in the Indictment; and (2) the documents relating to the sealing of the Indictment.

Your request for search warrant evidence and our phone conference

We believe your June 11, 2014 letter seeks evidence well beyond what could possibly be relevant or discoverable in this case. It seeks evidence not only related to the allegations contained in the Indictment, but also discovery into an ongoing criminal investigation of separate criminal activity, including evidence from recent searches. The search evidence consists of an estimated 1,700 boxes of evidence as well as 100 terabytes of data ("the seized evidence").

So as to try to limit or eliminate any concerns about discovery in this structuring case – one that we view as very narrow – we spoke earlier this week regarding the government's present intentions regarding how the case would be presented. Counsel for Ms. Omid raised a number of areas of concern and the parties discussed possibly stipulating to certain items to simplify the discovery process, avoid pretrial litigation, and to streamline the trial.

First, we noted that Ms. Omid's discovery request appeared to assume that the government would be showing that the structuring was based on a "pattern of illegal activity" beyond the structuring itself. We stated that the "pattern of illegal activity" alleged in the Indictment

Mr. Umhofer
RE: United States v. Cindy Omid
June 19, 2014

consists only of the structuring itself. See 31 U.S.C. § 5324(d)(2) (stating that enhancement applies when violating another law of the United States or as a pattern of any illegal activity involving more than $100,000 in a 12-month period); United States v. Peterson, 607 F.3d 975 (4th Cir. 2010) (analyzing in detail identical provision in Sentencing guidelines); United States v. $79,650.00 Seized from Bank of Am., 650 F.3d 381, 387 (4th Cir. 2011) (noting that enhanced penalty applied because defendant structured more than $100,000 in a 12-month period).

We also noted that, at present, the government intends to keep the search warrant affidavit(s) under seal, and therefore the government cannot and will not introduce any seized evidence. We discussed whether the government would be willing to stipulate to not using any seized evidence. You requested that we also consider agreeing not to obtain or use any evidence derived from the seized evidence. We did not commit to doing either, but said that we would consider this proposal, particularly if doing so would avoid any time-consuming discovery disputes.

In addition, we also indicated that, at present, the government does not plan on presenting evidence at trial demonstrating the source of the cash that Ms. Omid structured. You asked that we consider reducing that to a stipulation. You also asked that we consider stipulating that the government is not alleging that the source of the funds was an illegal or illicit source, and that the funds were not used for an illegal purpose. We will continue to consider your suggestions, and are requesting a follow-up call so as to determine whether the parties can reach any stipulations.

The government will produce all seized evidence assuming no privilege prevents such disclosure, plus Ms. Omid's emails

My colleagues and I continued to discuss the discovery issues after this phone conference. We determined that the government has no reason to believe any of the evidence seized during the June 4, 2014 searches would be relevant to the instant case or contain any Brady information. Those searches were targeted at other criminal activity and structuring was not a targeted crime. Moreover, if there was such evidence, Ms. Omid would know about it since the materials were taken from her or entities in which she is associated. Nevertheless, to the extent privilege/taint issues have been satisfied as to any requested evidence, the government will make available for inspection and onsite copying any of the seized physical evidence and will copy the contents of the 100 terabytes of data (or whatever subset you request) onto digital storage devices provided by you. The copying of data could take weeks or longer, depending on the volume requested, so please determine which devices you would like to have copied as soon as possible, and we will address any technical and privilege issues as they arise. Providing a copy of digital devices – none of which have been reviewed for their content – and access to the physical evidence fulfills the government's discovery obligations. Over the course of the months-long review, to the extent agents identify discoverable information during their review – and they will be instructed to search for Brady, Jencks, Giglio, and Rule 16 items – we will of course turn that information over as soon as practicable. I am enclosing as Exhibit 1, a CD containing the inventories from the search warrants so that we can confer regarding which materials you would like us to make available for Ms. Omid's review.

Mr. Umhofer
RE: United States v. Cindy Omid

The government is also in possession of emails from Ms. Omid from various sources, and may continue to receive emails. We have reviewed and will continue to review those emails and documents; to date, we have not identified any emails that appear to be relevant to this case. Nevertheless, we will search for and provide Ms. Omid's emails from sources other than the seized evidence, which as noted will be provided as described above. This will take some time.

Remaining issues in the discovery letter, and Sixth Amendment concern

Other than what has been produced, I am aware of no government communication or contact with Ms. Omid between October 6, 2013 and June 6, 2014.

With respect to your request for CBRs records for Ms. Omid, we are aware of no CTRs or CMIRs. To the extent your request would seek Suspicious Activity Reports, we object to your request and will not comment on the existence or absence of such reports. See 31 C.F.R. § 1020.320(e).

Finally, you expressed concern regarding the agent's attempt to interview Ms. Omid after her Indictment and after she was Mirandized, despite that there was no indication at the time of her arrest that she was represented in this matter, citing the attachment of counsel and the Sixth Amendment. The entire interaction between Ms. Omid and the arresting agents in this case was provided in Document Production 002. We believe your concerns are contrary to well-established law. See Patterson v. Illinois, 487 U.S. 285 (1988). In the event you have continuing concerns, feel free to raise them with us.

Please let me know if you have any questions, or would like to further discuss any of the matters raised above.

Very truly yours,
